OFFICE MEMORANDUM

Subject:- Siksha Khetra- a scheme for amalgamation and merger of different schools.

1. The Department is receiving various proposals for amalgamation of different categories of schools located in the same campus which are still pending due to absence of clear policy in this regards. It has been found that there are many common campuses where different categories of school viz Higher Secondary School, High School, ME School and even the LP school also exist in the same campus. In spite of location of these institutions in same campus or in a nearby place these schools are run individually with separate class routine and other individual academic functioning. In such system the services of teachers of one school are not shared for the student of another school even in need. As a result, the shortage of teachers of one school is not addressed by the teacher of other school. On the other hand, in private sector, the schools are mostly composite school having classes right from LKG/KG to XII standard which facilitate economy in administrative with optimum utilization of services of employees and also provides the platform for linkage of education. Moreover, consequent upon provincialisation of schools under the ambit of the Assam Venture Educational Institution (Provincialisation of services) Act 2011 some schools having very few enrollments have been taken over. These schools having low enrollment require merger with another schools which may also facilitate savings in administrative cost etc.

2. Further, it has been noticed that in some educational institutions specifically in Jr. Colleges the teachers are required to teach maximum two classes in a day, duration of which is not more than three hours. In response to our communication with the Omeo Kumar Das Institute of Social Change and Development, they have stated that the services of such teachers are not utilized fully and there is need to take policy to expand Junior Colleges to include class IX and X or the High School where only classes IX and X are taught to be merged with Junior College.

3. After careful consideration of all aspects and with a view to derive optimum services of the employees and other logistic support of the schools, it has been decided that the schools situated in same campus or in any nearby area shall be amalgamated/merged and all the schools shall be brought into one single administrative and academic unit under Siksha Khetra-a scheme for amalgamation and merger of different schools. The following criteria shall be considered for such amalgamation/merger:

Likewise, if the highest school is High school, then all other schools subordinate to the High school, shall be amalgamated with the High school. The SMC/SMDC of the highest school i.e. the Higher Secondary School or High school or ME(UP) school as the case may be, shall continue and SMC/SMDC of all others school shall stand withdrawn.
